

2017 ANNUAL REPORT

REAP FOOD GROUP

Dear friends,

After a year in this executive director seat at REAP Food Group, I carry an even deeper love of our mission and gratitude for the community showing up every day to make it a reality; not only the talented and passionate team at REAP, but also dedicated businesses, volunteers, farmers, institutions, and partners that commit to the vision that a just, sustainable, and local food system can transform our community.

We, as staff, volunteers, and supporters, have a lot to be proud of in the last year, as you can see in the pages ahead. I'd like to highlight a few of the initiatives that have made an impact in 2017:

1) REAP launched farmfreshatlas.org to connect more people to local food throughout the state. All five regional atlases came together to create this resource, thanks to a grant we received from USDA. Bookmark this beautiful site to find local and sustainable food wherever you travel in Wisconsin.

2) Through the generosity of corporate supporter Roth Cheese, REAP realized a longtime dream to add a Farm to School food truck to our programming. With our Farm to School partner, the Madison Metropolitan School District (MMSD), we served sample food truck lunches highlighting local foods this fall to enthusiastic Madison high school students. By the time you are reading this, the new truck, "Uproot by REAP" will be redesigned and ready to roll.

3) We joined forces for a second year with Madison & Dane County Health Department, Madison Parks, and MMSD to serve summer lunches with a side of sustainability programming at two sites: Elver Park and Southdale Park (We're growing again in 2018 to four sites!). REAP's involvement in this program has helped MMSD put more local fruits and vegetables into summer lunches and has provided more children in Madison with the opportunity to learn about how their food is grown, and why that matters.

There's no doubt that nurturing a resilient local food system is a long game. It can sometimes be complicated, expensive and risky to be change makers. Yet we are making real progress in Southern Wisconsin and we are fueled by the vision that it's creating a better future for residents, for farmers, and for our land and water. Because of the support of our members and partners, we know it is possible to make change. Thank you for investing in us and in a brighter future.

Warmly,

Helen Sarakinos, Executive Director

WHAT WE DO

REAP increases access to local food for everyone in the community through building a food system that is environmentally and economically sustainable. We do this by connecting farmers & producers to schools, restaurants, healthcare institutions, and consumers. REAP's programs include Farm to School, which educates students about sustainability and agriculture, Farm to Business, which connects local farms and producers to institutional purchasers, and the Southern Wisconsin Farm Fresh Atlas, a guide to connect consumers to local food.

A New Way to Roll Out Local Lunches

2017 was a big year as we “rolled out” the REAP Farm to School food truck, UpRoot by REAP. During the summer, the truck served free meals at two parks as part of the MMSD Summer Food Program where the REAP Farm to School team also provided daily education and activities. In the fall of 2017, REAP conducted a two week food truck pilot at Madison’s high schools. At LaFollette, East, and Memorial high schools, REAP and MMSD Food and Nutrition gave out lunch samples and gathered student feedback. Our pilot menu items included Korean BBQ sliders with locally sourced apple and kohlrabi slaw, and a cuban rice bowl featuring local sweet potatoes. We are excited to roll out UpRoot by REAP’s full lunch programming in 2018. This initiative is possible thanks to Roth Cheese, who donated the food truck.

Healthy Dane Invests in Farm to School Education

A three year-partnership with the Healthy Dane Collaborative funded REAP educational programming in 2017. More than 1,200 students in MMSD elementary, middle and high schools were educated about Farm to School, learning about where their food comes from, how it grows, and how to nourish their bodies. Healthy Dane’s support has also enabled the development of a Farm to School Ambassador pilot program, scheduled to start in summer 2018. The ambassador program will focus on parent and family engagement around Farm to School.

"The Atlas makes it so easy for our partners all over the state to find healthy, fresh, local foods in their area. At healthTIDE, our partners range from parents to teachers, chefs to hospital administrators – and everyone in between. It is pretty unique to have a resource at our fingertips that is so incredibly useful to such a wide range of our partners. In short, the FFA helps us continue to enhance connectivity throughout Wisconsin, linking people to good food and food to good people – and we could not be more excited about it."

Find Local Food Close to Home at Farmfreshatlas.org - In 2017, REAP Food Group received a Farmers' Market Promotion grant (FMPP) from the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Together with its four regional Farm Fresh Atlas partners, it created a single online statewide local food directory, farmfreshatlas.org, which launched in July 2017. The grant also includes a local food economic impact study of farmers, farmers' markets, and consumers and a statewide marketing campaign which will launch in summer 2018. While you can still enjoy the Atlas in its print form at your local grocery store or farmers' market, you can visit farmfreshatlas.org year-round to find locally grown foods, restaurants and events.

Buy Fresh Buy Local

How does it work? Chefs need local ingredients - we work to find growers that have them. Farmers need new markets for their products- we work to find chefs that can prepare them. REAP helps promote these restaurants for doing good work in sourcing and serving Wisconsin products from our area farms and food producers. You do your part to support our collective work by dining at these restaurants. Buy Fresh Buy Local reflects a commitment to local growing, serving and eating that our whole community can embrace.

Real Benefits for Growers

Hilltop Community Farm grows a variety of crops for its Community Supported Agriculture customers. They also grow a variety of popular and unique fruits such as apples, pears, plums, currants, elderberry and hardy quince. Faced with a better than expected crop of quince fruit, Erin Schneider of Hilltop Community Farm contacted REAP for help in locating restaurants who might be interested in buying. REAP alerted Buy Fresh Buy Local chefs to availability of this unique fruit and shared recipe ideas from the farm. These connections resulted in Hilltop Community Farm selling all of their remaining quince.

“ As a small-scale diversified farm, we have slowly been expanding our production capacity to include more unique fruits. We primarily sell directly to customers through our CSA program and selling to restaurants can be daunting, but this marketing channel is integral to supporting us economically as more fruit comes into fruition. Thank you for all of the behind the scenes logistical magic you do in facilitating relationship and connecting farmers, chefs, and eaters! I am truly grateful to have connected with your program! ”
